

Information Sessions on the new Electronic Public Procurement System

The Department of Contracts will soon start to publish the first fully-electronic tenders through a new Electronic Public Procurement System (EPPS). In order to assist economic operators through the transition from conventional to electronic tendering, the Department is holding a series of informal Information Sessions on the new electronic tendering system.

The broad agenda of each Information Session is as follows:

- An overview of the recent developments in electronic procurement, and of the forthcoming initiatives;
- A brief walkthrough of new portal, and how the Department of Contracts shall be running it in parallel with the current website;
- The registration process (including information on how to obtain the personal and organization e-ID);
- Searching for tenders and navigating the tender page;
- Preparing tender submissions; and
- Submitting tenders online.

In order to have as much outreach as possible, and due to the very limited places available (circa 35), only TWO representatives per company/group of companies will be accepted for each information session. Registrations will be accepted on a first come, first served basis. Interested economic operators are invited to click this link  to view more details on when information sessions are scheduled, and how to register.

Robert Grixti
Assistant Director (Electronic Procurement)
Department of Contracts